

Implant Solutions - Missing all of your Teeth?

If you are missing or need to remove all of your teeth, dental implants can offer a number of options to help regain your confidence and your smile.

As an alternative to wearing a full removable denture, multiple implants can be placed in the jawbone to provide support for your new teeth. There are a number of ways this can be achieved. All options are extremely successful, however, discussion with your specialist would be required to assess your suitability for each option.

“After years of hiding my smile I now beam with happiness and confidence.”

If you would like to discuss the options available to you, your general dentist will often be able to provide you with more information. An appointment with one of our team of specialists could then be arranged for you. Further information on replacement of your teeth using dental implants can be found on the Citygate Dental website (<https://www.citygatedental.ie>).
